Dogs welcome at Bolt Holes

With over 25 years' experience in the travel industry, Sarah Manby, co-founder of Yorkshire Bolt Holes Ltd knows a thing or two about hospitality and how to look after her guests. Sarah and her husband Tim run a successful business offering stylish holiday cottages, just for two, in Nidderdale, an Area of Outstanding Natural Beauty.

Featured in the 'Special Places to Stay' guide, by travel guru Alastair Sawday, the couple spotted a gap in the market for stylish, dog friendly holiday accommodation when trying to find a great place to stay with their own black Labrador back in 2006.

Promoting the locality

Sarah meets and greets her guests and helps point them in the right direction so her visitors get the very most from their stay with them from the off. Local shops, amenities, walks and things to do and see are discussed over a friendly cup of Yorkshire tea and a slice of Sarah's' homemade lemon drizzle cake.

It's this personal touch that makes this holiday cottage business stand out from the rest and guests are encouraged to 'live like a local' during their stay - forgetting the supermarket and buying fantastic local produce whilst on holiday, visiting farmers markets and local attractions, and enabling them to get a real true perspective of what it is like to live in North Yorkshire.

Not only are Sarah's' guests encouraged to holiday more sustainably, this ethos is continued in how Yorkshire Bolt Holes runs its business – from working with local suppliers, tradespeople and promoting local artists, to encouraging guests to recycle and to use public transport wherever possible.

Whoever you travel with, you always receive a warm welcome at Yorkshire Bolt Holes!
